SOMEWHAT ANNOTATED BIBLIOGRAPHY
RELATED TO INDIGENOUS HISTORY AND ARCHEOLOGY OF THE UPPER SKAGIT AREA

R. Mierendorf

Beckey, Fred
A history book about the non-Native discovery and exploration of the northern Cascades.

Collins, June M.
Available at some local bookstores; this is the only ethnography about the settlement, subsistence, and spiritual life of the Upper Skagit people.

Diamond, Jared
A popular and insightful examination of the influence of climate and geography on world history.

Eaton, S. Boyd, Marjorie Shostak, and Melvin Konnor
An excellent comparison between contemporary American dietary and exercise habits and those of our earlier, Paleolithic relatives.

Gunther, Erna
Available at libraries and occasionally at bookstores; an early and classic treatment of Western Washington Indian use of native plants, by tribal groupings.

Kirk, Ruth and Richard Daugherty
The only non-technical overview covering the important archeological discoveries within the state, by an outstanding natural history writer.

Louv, Richard.
Powerful and compelling statement about the human need for contact with nature.

Majors, Harry M. (editor)
An annotated version of Ross’ historic crossing of the North Cascades, July-August 1814; this journal is only available in large libraries.

Mierendorf, Robert R.
An archeologist’s personal view of the discovery and exploration of the archeology of the North Cascades in the vicinity of Manning Park; very limited distribution.

A professional but non-technical approach to the human experience in the North Cascades, from a 10,000 year-long perspective.

National Geographic
A brief note describing progress and results of the archeological program in North Cascades National Park over the previous six years.

Pielou, E. C.
A fairly comprehensive review of the changing climates and ecosystems of North America during and after the last ice age; as non-technical treatment as there is of this fascinating and technical subject.

Pitzer, Paul C.
BIBLIOGRAPHY CONTINUED

ROSS LAKE AT SUNRISE PHOTOGRAPHED BY JOHN SCURLOCK

Sampson, Chief Martin J.
1972 Indians of Skagit County. Skagit County Historical Series No. 2, Skagit County Historical Society, Mt. Vernon. An authoritative account, from a Native American perspective, of the history of the tribes of Skagit County, beginning with the Point Elliott Treaty of 1855.

Stewart, Hilary
1996 Stone, Bone, Antler, & Shell: Artifacts of the Northwest Coast. An excellent, non-technical explanation of the great variety of Native American tools, their manufacture, and function; a great reference and teaching aid.

Stewart, Hilary and Bill Reid

Suiter, John
2002 Poets on the Peaks. Counterpoint, Washington, D.C. Outstanding book about fire lookouts, poets, Buddhism, the North Cascades, wilderness, Ross Lake's role in all of this, and more.

Tabor, Rowland and Ralph Haugerud
1999 Geology of the North Cascades. The Mountaineers, Seattle. [A wonderfully readable, non-technical book about North Cascades geology by authors who “wrote the book on the subject”].

Thomas, Edward Harper
1970 Chinook: A History and Dictionary. Binfords & Mort, Portland, Oregon. [This small book is both the most authoritative and accessible treatment of the Northwest Coast trade language spoken by Indian and non-Indian people of the last century].

Turner, Nancy J.